

Scholarships for Palestinian Students offered by the Government of Malta for Postgraduate Studies at the University of Malta

Call for Applications 2015

The Government of Malta announces the second call for applications for Palestinian students wishing to pursue post-graduate studies at the University of Malta. The Scholarships are designed to facilitate the formation of young Palestinian professionals in two key areas which have become increasingly recognised as critical pillars for the creation of a more sustainable future for Palestine, namely humanitarian action, and cultural heritage. Malta is an ideal meeting point for the realization of this goal, not only because of the relevant expertise it offers in these two sectors, but also because of the strong historic and cultural ties it enjoys with the Arab world as well as with Europe.

Objective

The specialised formation of young and promising Palestinian citizens is an important pillar for the ongoing capacity-building efforts in Palestine. Two of the emerging sectors where more young professionals are needed on the ground are humanitarian action, and the conservation and management of cultural heritage. An investment in the specialised formation of professionals in these two sectors is an investment in the future of Palestine, with a better and more sustainable quality of life for its citizens.

Why sponsor students in Conservation and Management of Built Heritage?

The main objective of the international community's engagement in Palestine is the establishment of an independent and sovereign Palestinian State living side by side in peace and security with the State of Israel. Cultural heritage is widely recognised as a powerful medium for the formation of a sense of identity, civic pride and community regeneration. A number of Palestinian initiatives are already exploring the immensely rich patrimony of Palestine to help build a better future for the country. The formation of more young professionals will directly support the growth and consolidation of these home-grown initiatives.

A fundamental principle of sound and sustainable heritage conservation and management is the empowerment and the enablement of local communities with the skills and tools to manage their own cultural heritage resources. The formation of heritage management and conservation/restoration professionals within a community is the most essential step in this process of emancipation from an excessive and long-term dependence on external expertise.

A second principle of sustainable heritage management is the development of conservation/restoration and management techniques that are suited to local materials, traditions and skills, in order to ensure that they may be replicated and sustained with the least possible dependence on externally-devised solutions.

There are a number of distinct similarities between Maltese and Palestinian built heritage. For this reason the training and expertise offered by the University of Malta are highly relevant to the Palestinian context. These common characteristics should also facilitate the creation of long-term synergies between the University of Malta and Palestinian universities.

The scholarship scheme will directly support the successful and sustainable delivery of these goals through capacity-building at a local level, in order to help develop a professional workforce on the ground that is capable of developing and maintaining an indigenous heritage conservation and management practice.

Why sponsor students in Humanitarian Action?

The overall situation in Palestine and particularly in Gaza, as well as the continued existence of large refugee camps calls for a high degree of expertise in humanitarian action. Humanitarian issues related to the Palestinian situation are also continuously on the agenda of international organisations, including the United Nations and its various agencies. It is imperative that Palestinians have the capacity and professional knowledge to take the lead in shaping both policy and practice related to humanitarian action in Palestine at the international, regional, and local levels.

Humanitarian action today emphasizes local ownership, participation and bottom-up approaches. Thus, it is only logical from this perspective to develop extensive Palestinian expertise on an issue which, unfortunately, affects the Palestinian people on a daily basis.

The Master of Arts in Humanitarian Action of the University of Malta combines theory and practice in such a way as to enable the students to work on a range of issues related to humanitarian action, from humanitarian diplomacy, via forced migration to management and evaluation in humanitarian action, all issues of particular interest in the Palestinian context.

Malta-Palestine relations

Brief overview of bilateral relations between Malta and Palestine

Ever since its independence Malta has traditionally held close and friendly relations with the Palestinian people. Malta was one of the first European countries to support the principle of a two-state solution to the long-standing conflict in the Middle East. To this end its foreign policy has consistently supported international efforts aimed at a peaceful and negotiated resolution to the conflict and the establishment of an independent and sovereign Palestinian State living side by side in peace and security with the State of Israel.

Throughout the years Malta and Palestine have also sought to deepen their bilateral relations through the intensification of cooperation in various sectors. In 1979 the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO) opened a representative office in Malta and in 1989 Malta accepted the nomination of the first Ambassador of Palestine to Malta. The PLO representative office was subsequently awarded the status of an embassy. During July 2008 President Mahmoud Abbas, paid a first visit to Malta. In June 2009 Malta inaugurated its Representative Office in Ramallah. The Hon. Joseph Muscat, Prime Minister of Malta paid a first visit to Palestine on 17 October 2013. During his visit the Prime Minister of Malta reaffirmed Malta's commitment to state-building efforts in Palestine and in line with this policy he announced the setting up of the present scholarship scheme. The Hon. George W. Vella, Foreign Minister of Malta, last visited Palestine during October 2014 and was the first Foreign Minister to visit Gaza following the hostilities of the previous summer.

Overview of Malta's Assistance to the Palestinian National Authority

Malta remains committed to complement its political engagement with practical assistance to state-building efforts. Apart from a financial contribution of €137,567 to the Mécanisme Palestino-Européen de Gestion de l'Aide Socio-Economique (PEGASE) Malta also contributes regularly to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), the latest being €25,000 during January 2014 and €25,000 during May 2014. During 2014 Malta donated a total of €150,000 to UNRWA.

Furthermore, Malta has regularly participated in donor conferences and pledged contributions.

In the aftermath of the Annapolis Conference, Malta participated in the December 2007 Paris Donors' Conference. At this conference Malta pledged to contribute directly to the Palestinian Authority's budget and to provide expertise on water supply, health and education, the training of public servants and the ICT sector.

Malta also participated in the 2008 Berlin Conference in Support of Palestinian Civil Security and Rule of Law. At this event, Malta offered a one-month familiarisation visit for three Palestinian police officers. During the visit, which took place during July-August 2009, the officers were assigned to various sections of the police forces of Malta, including the Administrative Law Enforcement

Section, the Economic Crime Unit, the Money Laundering Unit, the CID, Police Academy, the SAG, and the Drug Squad.

At the Conference in Support of the Palestinian Economy for the Reconstruction of Gaza held in Sharm El Sheikh during March 2009, Malta pledged the sum of €20,000. This amount was transferred in June 2009.

In further fulfilment of the pledge made at the Paris Donors' Conference, following the opening of the Representative Office of Malta in Ramallah, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Malta awarded €25,000 in Overseas Development Assistance (ODA) funds to a University in Bethlehem and a hospital in East Jerusalem. During 2014 Malta allocated € 29 200 for the implementation of ODA projects in cooperation with educational and health institutions and non-governmental organisations based in East Jerusalem and other cities in the West Bank.

In another initiative, Malta sponsored a workshop on the conservation of built heritage in Palestine. The workshop, organised by Heritage Malta and the International Centre for the Study of the Preservation & Restoration of Cultural Property (ICCROM), was hosted in Bethlehem during December 2011. A follow-up workshop, held in Ramallah during September 2012 finalised work on the Charter on the Conservation of Cultural Heritage in Palestine (The Palestine Charter). During February 2013 the Palestinian Minister for Tourism and the Antiquities launched the Charter - the first of its kind in the Arab world.

During 2012 Malta donated a consignment of clothes and shoes to the residents of the Gaza Strip. The shipment was delivered in coordination with UNRWA.

In addition to these ad hoc contributions, Malta has a well-established tradition of offering two scholarships annually for Master's programmes at the University of Malta and at the Malta-based Mediterranean Academy of Diplomatic Studies (MEDAC). Over forty students have benefited from these scholarships and graduates from these programmes are currently working at the Office of the President, Palestinian ministries, namely the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and other public and private institutions in Palestine. In addition, twice a year, Malta sponsors the participation of two Palestinian officials in MEDAC seminars.

During his visit to Palestine on 17 October 2013 Malta's Prime Minister pledged €46,800 towards the creation of a new scholarship scheme for Palestinian students to study in Malta. The scheme was formally launched during June 2014 and the first beneficiaries of the Scholarship Scheme started their studies at the University of Malta during October 2014. This commitment has been renewed for 2015.

The University of Malta

The University of Malta is the highest teaching institution in Malta. It is publicly funded and is open to all those who have the requisite qualifications. Over the past few years, the University has reviewed its structures in order to be in line with the Bologna Process and the European Higher Education Area. Conscious of its public role, the University strives to create courses which are relevant and timely in response to the needs of the country. The supreme governing bodies of the University are the Council and the Senate. The present structure of the University was established by the 1988 Education Act.

There are some 11,000 students following full-time or part-time degree and diploma courses, all of which run on the modular / ECTS credit system.

The University is geared towards the infrastructural and industrial needs of the country so as to provide expertise in crucial fields. Over 3,000 students graduate in various disciplines annually. The degree courses at the University are designed to produce highly qualified professionals, with experience of research, who will play key roles in industry, commerce and public affairs in general. There are a further 2,800 pre-tertiary students at the Junior College which is also managed by the University.

The University today has fourteen faculties: Arts; Built Environment; Dental Surgery; Economics, Management & Accountancy; Education; Engineering; Health Sciences; Information & Communication Technology; Laws; Media & Knowledge Sciences; Medicine & Surgery; Science; Social Wellbeing and Theology.

A number of interdisciplinary Institutes and Centres have been set up in various fields. The Institutes include Anglo-Italian Studies; Baroque Studies; Confucius; Digital Games; Earth Systems; European Studies; Islands & Small States; Linguistics; Maltese Studies; Physical Education & Sport; Public Administration & Management; Sustainable Development; Sustainable Energy; Tourism, Travel & Culture; the Edward de Bono Institute for the Design & Development of Thinking; the Mediterranean Academy of Diplomatic Studies and the Mediterranean Institute.

The University of Malta has also set up a School of Performing Arts.

The campus is home to the IMO International Maritime Law Institute (IMLI).

The University of Malta as a host for international students

Lying at the cross-roads of the Mediterranean, the University of Malta has, over its 400-year history been the hub for international academic exchange on the island. This legacy has been carried on to the present day as the University hosts close to one thousand international students from 86 different countries, active collaborations with universities in Europe, Asia, the United States, Africa and Australia and a host of international visitors, experts and external examiners from different parts of the globe which have turned the University into an international campus which celebrates the diversity and cultural richness of all those who frequent it. With English as its language of instruction and wide-ranging support services to meet the needs of its local and international community, the University consistently seeks to embark on projects and initiatives in order to continue boosting its international student figures and extending its network to new partners in order to create sustainable collaborations in diverse fields of interest.

The University of Malta currently hosts over 11,000 students, of which 10% are international students from 98 different countries, following courses at undergraduate and postgraduate level. For the academic year 2014/5, the University hosted 470 students on Erasmus (European) and other exchange programmes with the US, Japan, Australia, Canada and China whilst another 860 international students are currently reading for a full degree.

The principal contact point for prospective and registered international students/visitors is the International and EU Office: <http://www.um.edu.mt/int-eu/international>

Current University of Malta/Palestine academic/professional relations

The University of Malta's Department of International Relations in the Faculty of Arts, and Department of Conservation and Built Heritage in the Faculty for the Built Environment have for a long time been committed to developing a strong relationship with their colleagues and counterparts in several Universities in Palestine, as well as NGOs active in their field. Collaborations over recent years have included a series of visits, exchanges, meetings, lectures, a round table discussion and an exhibition, all of which have underlined the potential benefits and paved the way for greater collaboration between the two countries in these fields. The University of Malta signed bilateral agreements for the mobility of staff and students with four Palestinian Universities in March 2015 in its bid for funds through the Erasmus + programme.

A number of other departments of the University of Malta hold excellent academic ties with Palestinian counterparts and as explained previously, the Mediterranean Academy of Diplomatic Studies has been a host for Palestinian students and academics for several years.

The Courses for which Palestinian students can apply for a scholarship

Master of Arts in Cultural Heritage Management, within the Department of Conservation and Built Heritage, Faculty for the Built Environment

Brief Description

The MA in Cultural Heritage Management (CHM) is an interdisciplinary programme aimed at persons working as heritage managers, or wishing to enter this field. The course draws on expertise across the university and beyond to provide a sound formation in the mediation of contemporary issues concerning cultural heritage resources, and practical skills that will help participants become effective leaders in this field. The geographical focus of the course is the Mediterranean region, however the principles, concepts and approaches acquired will be global in scope and relevance.

The full-time programme comprises two semesters of taught study-units (55 ECTS), a work placement during the summer semester (5 ECTS), and a dissertation (30 ECTS) that is undertaken during the first semester of the second year.

The MA in Cultural Heritage Management offers students:

- a sound understanding of contemporary issues in cultural resource management, and the skills to mediate these issues on the ground
- the preparation to be effective leaders and actors in the public arena of cultural heritage
- a range of practical skills that will make them more effective professionals
- a variety of methods for evaluating cultural heritage resources
- the skills to prepare a management plan for a specific cultural heritage resource
- critical reflection on heritage management practices, including their own

Admission Requirements

The Course shall be open to applicants in possession of a Bachelor's degree classified at least at Second Class Honours or Category II, in a discipline related to History, Archaeology, History of Art, Conservation, Education or in any other area deemed relevant by the Faculty Board of the Faculty for the Built Environment.

Applicants are required to present an internationally recognized English Language proficiency Certificate at the required level. Further information is available at:

http://www.um.edu.mt/int-eu/international/english\_language\_requirements

Ideal Student Profile

The ideal applicant, besides holding a first degree in a subject related to the fields indicated above, would ideally be a practicing professional in the cultural heritage sector in Palestine, or demonstrate a high degree of motivation to acquire and develop the specialised knowledge and skills to become an effective practitioner in that sector, in roles such as cultural heritage managers, curators or docents. Those employed in public office in Palestine or working actively with NGOs in Palestine will be preferred.

Master of Arts in Humanitarian Action

The Master's programme approaches humanitarian and development action from both a practical and an analytical perspective. Students develop the necessary knowledge and skills to critically analyse humanitarian action, and work effectively in the humanitarian and development field. The programme is taught by a combination of in-house experts and experienced guest lecturers. Candidates for the M.A. in Humanitarian Action will gain a comprehensive understanding of:

- The variety of humanitarian and more long-term responses to crises across the globe
- How such responses are shaped and what consequences they have
- The institutional and legal framework for humanitarian action
- Medical and public health aspects of humanitarian action
- Management and humanitarian action
- Anthropology and humanitarian action
- Media and humanitarian action
- Applied ethics in humanitarian action
- Human security, forced migration and humanitarian action
- Humanitarian evaluation in theory and practice
- Applied research methods in humanitarian action

The M.A. also offers the possibility of placements for those students who wish to expand their hands-on experience of what working in the humanitarian and development fields entails.

The programme is intended for individuals working in, or aspiring to work in, humanitarian agencies, multilateral aid institutions, NGOs and private foundations, government agencies, large corporations with in-house development/outreach work, and think tanks and research centres.

The M.A. enables students to develop a range of skills, including:

- The ability to analyse critically humanitarian and development action, how it is framed, structured, and delivered
- The ability to plan, programme, implement, and evaluate effectively humanitarian and/or development interventions
- The ability to navigate among the numerous players involved in humanitarian and development assistance
- Confident oral presentation skills on the topics covered
- Analytical writing in the area of humanitarian and development cooperation

Admission Requirements

1) A recognised degree as deemed relevant by the Faculty Board of Arts.

Given the multidisciplinary character of humanitarian work, students are expected to hold a first degree second class or equivalent, in any subject considered to be relevant by the Admissions Committee.

2) English Language Proficiency.

Applicants who have not studied in Malta are required to present an internationally recognised English Language Proficiency Certificate at the required level. Further information about English Language Requirements is available at:
